

THE ROANOKE TIMES.

(DAILY AND WEEKLY)

An Independent Democratic paper devoted to the material and political interests of Roanoke and Southwest Virginia.

DO YOU ADVERTISE?

"To discontinue an advertisement," says John Wamaker, "is like taking down your sign. If you want to do business you must let the public know it. I would as soon think of doing business without clerks as without advertising."

YESTERDAY'S CELEBRATION.

The tail of the British lion was given another twist yesterday and the American eagle at last accounts was still on top.

One hundred and fourteen years ago JOHN HANCOCK and a large number of other patriots affixed their names to the famous document, the author of which was THOMAS JEFFERSON, perhaps the greatest of Virginia statesmen and the "Father of the Democratic party."

Today the principles which he formulated are held dear to the heart of three times as many people as when he went to make up the country in which we live. It was JEFFERSON more than any other man who defined the principles of the party that is yet destined to rule this country again.

Yesterday was fittingly celebrated in Roanoke. It was a general holiday and it was improved. The parade was a grand success, the small boy was in his glory and his elder brother was a boy again.

THE FORCE BILL.

The Federal Election Bill has passed the House by a mean majority of six votes and there is hardly a doubt but what the President will affix his signature and it will become a law.

In the Senate we are assured that there is no opposition to its passage and there is no hope that it will meet with any stumbling block in that august assembly.

The bill was aimed at the South. There is an impression in the minds of all Republicans that the elections in that section are unfair. This impression, it seems, cannot be eradicated and perhaps the Force bill will do more toward this end than anything else. When the Republicans see that the returns are about the same as usual it is possible that they may be convinced.

The Times opposed the measure from its introduction. We believed that it was contrary to the letter and spirit of the constitution. Centralization is one of the great evils of the hour and when the great election machine of the country is put in the hands of any party the tendency toward corruption can hardly be stopped.

If President HARRISON wants to retrieve himself in the eyes of the conservative people of the United States, he could take a step in that direction by putting his veto on the Force bill.

ABOUT ROANOKE STREETS.

Once more the TIMES calls the attention of the council to the matter of street improvements.

It has done so time and again, but the advice which it has given has not been heeded and the streets of Roanoke are today in a worse condition than those of any city in the country.

Not only do the streets look bad, but their condition is a menace not only to the beauty, but to the health of the city.

A fine appearance is a good thing in any way, but health is a far better. The council should take immediate action. A few hundred dollars would work wonders in the matter of street improvements.

Labor is cheap, but doctors' bills come high.
